Transnational Migration and Human Security

The Migration-Development-Security Nexus

The volume places the migration-development-security nexus in the field of transnational studies. Rather than treating these three categories as self-evident, the essays excavate aspects of power and privilege built into their governing frameworks and conflicting rationales apparent in practices of control. Bringing together diverse experiences and case studies, the volume highlights the problematic nature of maintaining distinct and disconnected frameworks of governance. It argues for a new approach that demonstrates the significance and usefulness of comparative ethics in conceptualising migration from a human-centered and gendered perspective in order to address the multi-faceted and multi-dimensional nature and meanings of "security" more on <http://springer.com/978-3-642-12756-4>

- ▶ Reveals aspects of power and privilege within 'international migration' as a discursive area and at its intersections with the fields of 'development', governance and 'security'.
- ▶ Shows how institutional frameworks for cross-border movements of people, finance, and goods have co-evolved with changes in the workings of nation-states.
- ▶ Argues for a human security perspective which encourage exploratory thinking to overcome the limits of conventional analysis and policy approaches.
